The Alliance for Continuing Education in the Health Professions (ACEHP) will be honoring Haymarket Medical Education (HME) and its educational partner Novant, with the award for Outstanding Educational Collaboration at their annual meeting in January 2014.

ACEHP is the premier professional organisation in the healthcare continuing education industry, dedicated to accelerating excellence in healthcare performance through quality education, advocacy, and collaboration.

The award is for Haymarket Medical Education's work on the 'Type 2 Diabetes Mellitus – Sensible Educational Steps for Getting to Goal: An Outcomes Analysis Using a Closed Healthcare System' project.

The Sensible Educational Steps project was a collaborative effort between HME, the Presbyterian Novant Heart & Wellness primary-care group in Charlotte and the data analysis company Intelligent Medical Decisions.

Following a series of workshops convened by HME, a follow-up patient chart study audit revealed improved performance among primary care clinicians in the management of Type 2 Diabetes as well as improved diabetes control among their patients.
